Four Alberta Soldiers Win Army Awards

Soon after his graduation he enlisted in the Royal Canadian Engineers, and as a graduate engineer soon qualified for a commission. After receiving the basic army training he attended specialized engineer courses before proceeding overseas.

As a rule the Military Cross is awarded only for "conspicuous gallantry in action."

WITH EDMONTONS

Sergeant Alexander McLaren, now 25 years old, was born in Scotland. He came to Canada when he was seven years old, and lived for some years at Dinwiddie, where his father later was killed in a mine explosion. His mother then moved to Edmonton.

He enlisted immediately after the war, and was assigned to the Edmonton Regiment, and went overseas with the unit in December, 1939, arriving at Gretna, Scotland, to spend New Year's Eve in his native land.

He served with the regiment in the invasion of Sicily and then in the campaign in Italy. On Sept. 19 of this year he was wounded in the head by a shell fragment in the right side.

After receiving hospitalization in England, he returned to the front. He was posted to a new unit and sent to France, the Ardennes and Sutherland Highlands.

WINS PROMOTION

His gallantry in the mother told of having been promoted to the rank of company sergeant-major, and he was awarded the Military Cross for gallantry in the Ardennes.

North of Saarbrücken their command post was moved to the city's outskirts, and then sent 12 miles to the east.

STAND CRACKING UP

Further south the enemy's last stand was cracking up, and dive-bombers soared at the Neuf Brach bridge over the Rhine near Cologne.

On the northern flank of the Cologne front, both sides maintained a heavy artillery fire, but a relative lull in ground fighting was reported.

German forces were gathering in the area, and the U.S. 3rd Army was preparing to move forward.

The German commander told the U.S. 3rd Army that he was fighting a rearguard action.

NO ACTIVITY

No activity was reported from the extreme northern flank where snow was swirling down on shivering soldiers of the 1st Canadian and British Armies.

The 35th Infantry carved out the new crossings of the Saar, and they were fighting through the streets of Saarbrücken, eight miles south of Saarbrücken, and extending a bridgehead south of the city to a mile.

Russian Pianist Scores Triumph In Music Club Celebrity Concert

Alexander Ustinov, Russian pianist, scored a triumph at the Music Club celebrity concert, which was held at the Music Club, 1011 St. James Street, on Friday night in a Celebrity Series concert sponsored by the Women's Musical Club.

It was simply demonstrated as the program unfolded that he is one of the great pianists of the world.

At an exhibition of dazzling virtuosity the concert has few equals in this city's concert life. His stupendous technical equipment in itself would have fully justified the warm, enthusiastic reception by a capacity audience, which necessitated the playing of four encores after the final group.

Five contemporary masterpieces, the pianist played a pair with him in the matter of playing, which necessitated the playing of four encores after the final group.

GENUINE ARTIST

Although the agility with which he handled the piano, the keyboard, and the almost automatic number of notes he played in a fleeting moment, impressed one at first, there were other things which stamped him as a profound musician.

His tone production, which he fashioned into a delicate, shimmering texture, brought forth a light, shimmering and rippling, and, in the other hand, he up-locked power that resulted in great climaxes, and compelling volumes of tone.

But in all his gradations and nuances, he exercised supreme control with the result that his performance as a whole was one to be remembered for a long time.

Opening with Three Sonatas by Beethoven, Ustinov played the first, second and third, and the fourth, and the fifth, and the sixth, and the seventh, and the eighth, and the ninth, and the tenth, and the eleventh, and the twelfth, and the thirteenth, and the fourteenth, and the fifteenth, and the sixteenth, and the seventeenth, and the eighteenth, and the nineteenth, and the twentieth, and the TODAY'S MESSAGE

The Link of Charity

THE first rule for world peace was made by God when He commanded men to love one another. We call this the virtue of charity. Its test is not in the natural affection or kindness we show friends, but in what we do, say, or think in regard to those who may actually hate us and whom, in turn, we may cordially dislike. Based on simple justice, charity transcends all limitations of sentiment, race, creed, or station.

Charity is said to begin at home, but it must not stop there. It must go everywhere, speak every language. It must to look upon Negro and Oriental, Anglo-Saxon and Indian. It must look into every wound, every want, every cry in the name of every burdened heart. It must find its way into prisons as well as hospitals; envelop the rich as well as the poor, the unworthy as well as the righteous.

Charity, above all, must forgive. It must raise its voice against the iniquities and vices of enemies, yet plead for love of the brutal and debased. The sinner must never be placed beyond its pale; that is God's injunction. Over and over again we must remind ourselves that charity everlastingly links us to our enemies. Especially at this hour when the spirit of vengeance cries out for a bloody atonement of the murders, cruelties, the sadism, the unpeakable horrors that the ark of paganism and hate have committed.

Justice must be done; the hands of the guilty must be tied forever; but the Christian conscience must remember that charity has its place also in the courts of law.

Men may seek to break the links of charity, cry out in rage against the "softness" of the Christian doctrine of love; but in the end they will realize that charity is not softness but strength and wisdom; that it is the only hope of securing justice without breeding new hates to plague the world; that to lack charity today may be to lack peace and security tomorrow.

Bible Organization

Tours Communities

The British and Foreign Bible Society visited the eastern portion of the province last week. The Rev. E. J. Heuer, district secretary, and the Rev. H. O. T. Barwell, former district secretary, spent 10 days visiting Wainwright, Greenfield, Gill Edge, Auburndale, Vermilion, Mannville, Lyle, Kikior, Lloydminster, Hazy, Edmonton, and Blomington, Rosedale, Ribstone and Chauvin. The trip was part of the annual program of visiting Bible Society local branches in order to give information and stimulate interest in the work.

Collection of money to support the society in its worldwide work is done by local officers and collectors. Without these volunteer workers it would be almost impossible to carry on, and certainly the results would be only a fraction of what they are now. Their visit during the recent trip, as well as throughout North Alberta, responded.

Bishop of Edmonton, Saturday thanked all persons who helped in the bazaar recently held at the See House. In an open letter addressed to all those who assisted in the event, he said:

I thank most sincerely all who helped to make the bazaar at the See House such a success. Upwards of 600 people came and the amount received was $600—a splendid average.

I cannot possibly express my gratitude personally to all of you but the courtesy of the press does enable me to say it in this way.

The group of women who undertook this task in behalf of those who will need a comfortable home in their old age have done a great service. They are confident and expect an announcement concerning the House will be made in a few days.

NEW YORK, Dec. 9.

(AP)—Mervyn (Red) Dutton made another attempt to quit as president of the National Hockey League Friday but was persuaded to remain on the job until the annual meeting next June.

The league directors also attempted him to remain, he said only after Lester Patrick of New York Rangers agreed to continue as managing director.

Dutton, who became president last summer after serving in managing director since the death of Frank Calder in 1943, said he "vehemently" asked to be relieved of the presidential duties after the first of the year. The directors persuaded him to remain, he said only after Lester Patrick of New York Rangers agreed to continue as managing director.

This arrangement, which has been in effect all this season, will continue only until next summer's meeting, Dutton added, and at that time a new president will be named. Dutton, who has a contracting business in Calgary, said he was unable to devote the time to hockey which the presidency required.

The board dropped from the book provided a two-minute penalty for a player who broke his stick and failed to carry the part remaining in his hands to the bench.

Icy Streets Are Dangerous

To both motorists and motorists, icy streets are a real danger. Car drivers would do well to watch their speed and be on the alert for a quick stop, especially when visibility is poor. It is the driver's duty to take extra precautions when driving on icy roads. The Alberta Motor Association is now circulating leaflets to motorists, advising them to take extra precautions when driving on icy roads.

Veteran of Italian Fighting Knows Family Can Be of Inestimable Value to Man In Winning Difficult Readjustment Battle

Wounded Veteran Supervises Orthopaedic Factory

Many gallant young Canadians returning from the Italian front must be helped both of mental and physical aspects. But Edmund Tannous is equal to any task. In the battle of readjustment from the military to the civilian way of life, he is often giving the greatest assistance. Below is the story of one of these young Canadians, Edmund Tannous, who is helping his fellow veterans in their battle of readjustment.

By JACK DELONG

A returned serviceman's own family can be of untold value to him in winning the difficult battle of readjustment.

Edmund P. Tannous, 27-year-old wounded veteran of the Italian campaign was answering the question of what he believed to be the greatest help to a returned serviceman in the battle to readjust himself to civilian life after years in the service.

"Just about 70 per cent of the battle is a man's own family, if the home atmosphere is tranquil and those in the family understanding, then the battle is just about won. I have been very fortunate in that respect," he said.

Tannous, who was born and educated in Edmonton, lives with his wife and two children, Jerry and Joan, at 1017 Jasper Avenue.

SECOND SECTION

Second Accused To Stand Trial In Girl's Death

Pale and silent after three months behind bars, Frederick Leveille, half-breed, was committed for trial at the next sitting of supreme court by Magistrate Harold L. Hume, K.C. Friday afternoon on a charge of being an accessory after the fact. Charge of murder, preferred against the accused in connection with the death of 22-year-old Charlotte Hunter, Goodfellow Lake, Alberta, last Sept. 3, was withdrawn.

Leveille was arrested by city police and charged, along with Edgar Whittford, with the girl's murder. Whittford, found guilty of manslaughter, was sentenced recently to 10 years' imprisonment in Prince Albert penitentiary.

Leveille's signed statement to police was read to the court by crown prosecutor Guy Dymally, K.C. In the statement, the accused told of the girl and Whittford whom he called his grandchild, riding from a knoll into a hollow on the bank of the Saskatchewan river near Goodfellow Lake, following a drinking bout.

THOUGHT ONLY DRUNK

The accused looked at the girl immediately after, and knew, he said, that she was dead. He then informed of this fact to the police. He made a mistake, he concluded, in failing to report to the authorities.

Only one officer was called to the scene, and he was told by the girl's mother, Mrs. M. J. Hunter, that the girl was drunk.

Walter Beauchamp, defence counsel, reserved defence evidence.

The Inquiring Reporter

THE QUESTION:

Should the use of conductors on street cars be discontinued in the post-war period?

HARRY BALDWIN, clerk. I can see no reason why they should not be employed in the post-war period if their services are efficient and there is need of them in the work.

WILLIAM PERCY, bookkeeper. As the job they are doing is a war job, they should be kept. It is probable their services will be dispensed with as soon as traffic on the street railway system returns to normal. The transfer of the street car trolley buses will obviate the necessity of the employment. I expect to see the return of the one conductor street cars as soon as the war is over.

Michael Hall, Junior

The girl's mother, Mrs. M. J. Hunter, said that the girl was drunk. She also said that the girl was found lying on the ground, and that she was not able to move her.

Michael Hall, Junior, the girl's father, said that he was not at home at the time of the girl's death. He also said that he was not able to find out what happened to his daughter.

Adjourn Inquiry Into Dapp Fire

Inquiry into the deaths of the four children of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Paulsen, Dapp street residents, who perished in the flames that destroyed their home Thursday evening, began Friday afternoon and was adjourned in Dec. 10, Dr. H. M. Mason, coroner, presided. The four children, two boys and two girls, died in their home while their mother was visiting neighbors, according to the RCMP. The father is a member of the armed forces and is stationed at Debert, N.S. He was notified of the tragedy.

AMA Preparing For Expansion Tourist Trade

Considered one of the fastest growing automobile clubs on the continent, the Northern Alberta Motor Association has moved headquarters to its new office building. The association is all set to give improved service to its members and to look after the heavy tourist trade which is expected after the war.

"We want to make a welcome place here for strangers visiting in this part of the province," said W. C. Eaton, secretary-manager of the association, "and give them all the service and accommodation we possibly can."

Founded in 1916 the organization has a total membership of 1,200 with 2,500 regular members and 1,600 associate members.

It is a national and international organization and membership in the AMA entitles candidates to motor in any of the recognized states in Canada or the states in the U.S.

SERVICES DISTRICT

The northern branch of the AMA with headquarters in Edmonton serves the district north of a line running east and west at Red Deer. Other branches are located at Calgary and Lethbridge.

According to Mr. Eaton the members of the club are to make Alberta known as one of the better places to operate an automobile to make operation more economical and a greater pleasure in the operation to make driving safer and cut down the accident rate.

The Safety School Patrol instituted by the AMA has cut down the accident rate involving school children to a practically low number. School children appointed as "traffic police" direct the flow of cars and conduct questionnaires across intersections. Safety School Patrols are also organized in rural towns where the schools are adjacent to the highway.

Tourist service includes mapping out complete trips for vacationers, giving the best route to be followed, highway numbers and mileages. The association publishes strip maps of different sections of the province, listing points of interest for the tourist, official appointments of cafes, garages and hotels, and clearly defined hard-surfaced, gravel and dirt roads.

ROAD SERVICE

Members of the association are entitled to emergency road service wherever they may be. This service includes 24 minutes' emergency road service within 15 miles of an official garage or service station free towing service for cars stalled because of mechanical failure within 15 miles of an official service station. Beyond the 15-mile limit members pay mileage at 20 cents a mile. Five emergency calls are allowed for each member. In addition, members are entitled to an AMA appointed garage and service station to any member or one of his family who holds an associate card.

Free legal advice is available to members regarding any matter which involves their cars and they are covered by insurance. Mr. Eaton's staff consists of three girls who handle the correspondence and run an information bureau concerning the condition of highways in different sections of the province.

Garrison Plans To Hold Party New Year's Eve

Plans are going ahead at the Prince of Wales Army for the staging of a New Year's Eve celebration. Last New Year's year

3,500 persons attended the big Victory Jamboree. This year's event is being sponsored by the Edmonton Garrison with the proceeds going to war charities. The committee is headed by Capt. T. W. Coad, and Maj. M. P. H. Brown, DCM, is in charge of the event. Others in charge are: CSM B. Williamson, DCM, ticket committee; HSM C. P. Lambman, decorations and cloak room; and CSM T. E. Bucker, publicity program and games. Capt. W. J. Meier is chairman of all committees. HUNT IS ON The hunt is now on for one of the largest and loveliest Christmas trees in the district. The huge tree will be placed in the centre of the drill hall and will be beautifully decorated.

The program will have everything including magic stunts, solo dancing, team dancing, comedy skits, and a modern swing orchestra. Prizes will be offered for stunts and dancing and for just plain luck. This year close attention has been given to checking arrangements and three times as much space has been set aside for cloak rooms at last year. There will also be two large powder rooms for the ladies. Fifteen attendants will be in charge of checking facilities.

Musicians' Union Elects Officers

Clifford Wright has been elected president of the Edmonton Musicians Protective Association for 1945. He succeeds H. M. Seiler, who had occupied the post since 1930, and who did not seek reelection.

Other officers elected were Vice-president: William Boudetick, treasurer: Frank Parks, sergeant-at-arms: George Sloan; secretary-manager: H. T. Turner; executive: Roderick V. Cook, Stan Fraser, Frank McCarty.
Mr. Seiler joined the association here in 1931. From 1915-1920 he served as organist-at-arms and from 1921 to 1929 was first vice-president. He was elected president in 1930 and has served longer in this capacity than any other incumbent of the post. On his retirement he was presented with a certificate of appreciation.

Mr. Wright is one of this city's most proficient trumpet players. He started on his career as a member of the Newsho's Band, off has played in most of the large orchestras here as solo trumpet, and also is a member of the military band of the 2nd Heavy Battalion, The Loyal Edmonton Regiment.

UNCLE JIMMY

The TEENIE WEENIES

BY WM. DONAHEY.

UNCLE JIMMY lived in a little house on the lane that passed near the Teenie Weenie village. He did odd jobs around the neighborhood and he knew all the children for miles around. Some of the older folk thought Uncle Jimmy was a little queer because he had told of seeing Teenie Weenie tracks in the mud. They thought he was making up fairy stories.

Uncle Jimmy first saw Teenie Weenie tracks when he lost his pocketbook in a mud puddle and the Teenie Weenies pulled it out and dragged it up where he could find it. Their tracks in the mud told him there were Teenie Weenies in the neighborhood. The second time Uncle Jimmy came across the tiny tracks was when the Teenie Weenies found his pipe. This time the footprints were too faint to follow.

"I'll watch for those tracks," the old man muttered, "and if I see them again I'll follow them to the place where those little people live."

One morning Uncle Jimmy went out to cut some wood for his stove. It was snowing a little and his glasses became wet so that it was hard for the old man to see. He took off his wet glasses and laid them on a log and when he had finished cutting the wood he went off without them. When he wanted his glasses a little later he hunted all through his house and he even searched up and down the lane near the Teenie Weenie village. The Teenie Weenie Policeman saw him and knew that Uncle Jimmy had lost something.

The Teenie Weenies get a great deal of their news from about the neighborhood through the birds and so the Policeman questioned Tilly Titter the English sparrow, who usually sees and hears everything of importance.

"'E's lookin' for 'is specks," Tilly told the Policeman. "'E left them out at the woodpile and 'e can't find 'em."

The Teenie Weenies are very fond of Uncle Jimmy, and when the Policeman told them the news the General decided to help the old man. In a short time the Teenie Weenies found the glasses and they carried them to Uncle Jimmy's front door.

Uncle Jimmy found the glasses and he also saw the many Teenie Weenie tracks in the snow. "Now," exclaimed the old man, "I'll follow those tracks and see where those little people live!"

He followed the tracks down to the lane, but on the other side of the road he lost them, for the Teenie Weenies had walked beneath a mass of tangled weeds where the old man could not follow them.
